Wabash County Museum honors veterans in November

During November all veterans will receive free admission to the Wabash County Museum, 36 E. Market St., where they can view the Honor Wall exhibit and the Military exhibit as well as 90-plus additional exhibits that celebrate the history of Wabash County. The military exhibit features a video of several Wabash County veterans sharing their oral histories. The museum team would like to expand the collection of oral histories from veterans. On Wednesday, Nov. 17, veterans may schedule a private session to record their stories. This time may be scheduled by calling 260-563-9070 or stopping by the Welcome Desk. The museum is also collaborating with Living Well in Wabash County to offer a Senior Scavenger Hunt during November. Seniors can pick up their scavenger hunt form at the Welcome Desk. Answers are found in several museum exhibits as well as on the windows

Urbana man dies in train crash Friday

David Tomson, 73, of Urbana, was declared dead at the scene

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

On Friday, an Urbana man died in a train crash. At approximately 3:36 p.m., officers from the Indiana State Police (ISP) and the Wabash County Sheriff's Department responded to a crash, said ISP Peru Post public information officer Sgt. Tony Slocum.

The crash took place on County Road 500 South, near Indiana 15.

Slocum said the preliminary investigation by Trooper Dustin Rutledge revealed that David Tomson, 73, of Urbana, was driving a 2012 Chevrolet Silverado westbound on County Road 500 South.

Slocum said the pickup truck attempted to cross railroad tracks near Indiana 15 and failed to yield to a northbound Norfolk and Southern train.

Slocum said the train hit the driver's side of the truck.

Slocum said Tomson was pronounced dead at the crash scene by Wabash County Coroner Ken Brown.

On Monday, Slocum said he was "not aware" of any other recent train and vehicle crashes in that area.

"The train crossing has a yield sign and a railroad crossing sign. It does not have crossing arms or warning lights," said Slocum.

Rutledge was assisted at the scene by the Wabash County Sheriff's Department, the Wabash Fire Department, the Noble Township Fire Department, the Wabash County Coroner's office and ISP Sgt. Adam Moor.

Slocum said Tomson did have his seat belt on during the time of the crash.

"No drugs or alcohol (are) suspected," said Slocum.

This story will be updated as more information becomes available.

First snow of the season

The region gets its first fall dose of powder over the weekend

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

It had to happen sooner or later and this weekend, the area saw its first snowfall of the fall season.

On Monday, National Weather Service (NWS) Northern Indiana meteorologist Chris Roller said Sunday's storm was due to lake effect snow.

"It wasn't completely cool enough that it was going to be all snow," said Roller. We had times where rain and some other precipitation types were able to mix in. That kind of helps to give the snow a little more of a wetter consistency."

In terms of totals, Roller said in Claypool, they recorded a total of 2 inches of snow, while Huntington saw only .4 inches.

"There was a time period where the snow was actually falling at it's heaviest and most intense after it was able to change over to all snow," said Roller. "Based on the reports I have, it seemed to fall between South Bend and Goshen and east of Niles is where we have our highest reports from. Part of the reason is that it was wavering to the west and the east as it was coming through."

Roller said this period of the storm started approximately from 4 or 5 p.m. and dissipated shortly after midnight Monday morning. Roller said temperatures during the snowfall ranged somewhere between 32 and 39 degrees depending on the location.

"In many cases, if it doesn't fall hard enough or clump together, which is called an aggregate, it will just melt or become smaller," said Roller. "There was also a little bit of a breeze going on. That can actually rip the snowflakes apart."

Roller said that because it was so early in the year, the pavement temperatures were also fairly warm.

"It would have taken a

Wabash named state's newest Broadband Ready Community

Mayor hopes to have free downtown internet access available by next summer

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

This weekend, Wabash was honored with the state's most recent designation as an official Broadband Ready Community.

The announcement took place on Saturday afternoon at the Cloud Club at the Charley Creek Inn. In attendance were Mayor Scott Long; Lt. Gov. Suzanne Crouch's chief of agency operations Jodi Golden, who was also the former Office of Community and Rural Affairs (OCRA) executive director; and current OCRA executive director Denny Spinner.

"Applying for and receiving the Broadband Ready Community certification from the state of Indiana, enables us to tell the telecommunications industry that we are willing, ready and able to accept even more internet service providers," said Long. "Competition makes everyone better and can provide our citizens affordable internet service. One thing we learned during this pandemic is that internet service is invaluable for our students, workers, schools and companies to continue education and work activities in the most trying of circumstances."

The Broadband Ready Communities Program was created as a tool to encourage broadband development throughout Indiana, said Crouch's director of communications Randy Spieth.

"The Broadband Ready Community certification sends a message to the telecommunication industry that

Kurt Deimer joins Bon Jovi's Phil X opening for Queensrÿche's Geoff Tate on Thursday

By ROB BURGESS
Wabash Plain Dealer Editor

By his own account, Kurt Deimer has taken a long road to get where he's at now.

Deimer is on tour with Bon Jovi guitarist Phil X opening for Queensrÿche's Geoff Tate and will be performing Thursday at Eagles Theatre in Wabash. Phil X is Deimer's guitarist, co-writer and musical director, who splits time between Deimer's band and Bon Jovi, which he officially joined in 2016 after replacing Richie Sambora a few years earlier.

The fountain, a popular gathering spot over the decades, will be refurbished and serve as a focal point for green space that will replace the former teaching and administrative building. The Administration Building is in the background.

NMPL’s ‘Santa’s Workshop’ event set for Saturday

Children will be able to purchase items with free ‘NMPL bucks’

STAFF REPORT

The North Manchester Public Library (NMPL) has planned their “Santa’s Workshop” event from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 20, according to adult department manager and marketing coordinator Jeanna Hann.

“The NMPL elves have been hard at work creating all kinds of fun, beautiful ornaments, décor and gifts and they’re inviting you to come to Santa’s Workshop to see all the wonderful things they have made,” said Hann. “This is the ultimate, kid-friendly shopping experience, with free NMPL bucks given out at the door so our young community members can enjoy ‘buying’ gifts for family and friends.”

Adults are also invited to shop by purchasing NMPL bucks to use towards buying gift items. All funds raised go towards future library programming.

“Santa’s Workshop is a great way to help kids be a part of their family’s gift-giving traditions,” said children’s department manager Sarah Morbitzer. “With free bucks from the library, they can shop for adorable, handmade items to give to their favorite people. They get the joy of giving without the challenges of figuring out how to pay for it. All kids will receive 10 free bucks at the door and can also use the bucks they earned during summer reading. Most items will cost between one to three bucks so each child will be able to buy multiple gifts. We will also accept donations that day from anyone who wants to buy bucks – three NMPL bucks will be available for $1 each – for us to pass out to any kids who are running short.”

Hann said Santa will also be visiting between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to pass out candy canes and take pictures.

“Having started out as a clerk and making the crafts, I am super excited that I will get to experience the complete circle of one of our biggest events at the library since moving into the programming coordinator position,” said new programming coordinator Molly Magnus. “I cannot wait to connect with the community and see the excitement on kids’ faces when they purchase a gift by themselves.”

the city of Wabash has taken steps to reduce barriers to broadband infrastructure investment,” said Long. “While investment in broadband infrastructure is not guaranteed to follow once a community obtains the certification, reducing the regulatory hurdles that deter investment is a key step towards creating an environment ripe for broadband investment.”

Due to legislation passed in 2020, the Broadband Ready Community Program was transitioned from the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC) to the OCRA. IBO began the day-to-day management of the Broadband Ready Community Program on July 1, 2020.

“Our administration remains focused on getting high-speed, reliable internet service to un-served and under-served Hoosiers,” said Crouch. “Congratulations to Wabash as it joins more than 55 other Indiana communities that are now broadband ready. Other communities around our state have already benefited through the Broadband Ready Communities Program, and I am pleased to see the steps taken by Wabash leaders to attract broadband investment.”

The certification was approved by the Indiana Broadband Office following the city of Wabash’s adoption of a Broadband Ready Community ordinance.

“The city of Wabash is blessed to be served by 2-GB-speed internet providers, however, there is always room to improve and provide competition in my mind. Wabash welcomes broadband service providers to our community as we strive to be a great place to live, work and play and create a climate that is attractive to potential businesses,” said Long. “As mayor, I continue to explore opportunities to assist everyone with internet service. We are and have been, working on free downtown internet access for visitors and residents alike. Progress on this project has been slowed while we negotiate with utility companies to get access to attach WiFi access points, but we are moving forward to completion.”

Long said they hoped to have free downtown internet access available by summer 2022. Long said currently they provide limited access from four points mounted on Wabash City Hall.

“We intend to provide 45 access points when the project is complete, providing 100-MB speeds,” said Long. “We are once again proud to be leading the way in our area for future innovation. We anxiously await the deployment of fiber internet to all areas of Wabash County through projects currently underway by Heartland REMC and others. This will make our entire county attractive to businesses and people alike as we strive to increase our local population.”

Indiana Broadband Office project manager Earnie Holtrey said multiple applications continue to be submitted to the office monthly.

In addition to Wabash, since July, the state has also declared Etna Green, Greensburg, New Haven, Huntington, and DeKalb, Blackford, Jackson, Howard, Randolph and Carroll counties to be Broadband Read Communities.

“The Indiana Broadband Office commends Mayor Long and the entire Wabash community. We stand ready to walk alongside the mayor to ‘Expose Wabash to the World and the World to Wabash.’ I can think of no better way to accomplish this than by continuing to encourage quality, affordable connectivity for all,” said Holtrey.

Bridges, overpasses, things like that that would have had some black ice in a few locations. Some of your more traveled roads would have been harder to create any of those slippery spots.”

President Dave McFadden shared the information with alumni, employees and students on Friday.

The last employees with offices there moved to other spaces in 2019. The Manchester Chime bells were removed for restoration in August.

In the coming months, alumni, students, colleagues and friends will have opportunities to honor the building’s legacy before it comes down.

McFadden said the exact timing will be determined by the contractor, but the work is expected by the end of summer 2022. Afterward, the area will be maintained as a green space featuring Manchester’s mature oak trees and benches with the beloved fountain as its focal point.

Should future needs arise, the open area could be used to construct another building.

Visit Wabash County’s 2021 exclusive ornament on sale

Ninth in a series, each ‘W’ ornament has been ‘intricately assembled’ in Wabash

STAFF REPORT

Visit Wabash County has announced that their 2021 exclusive ornament is now available for purchase, according to marketing and brand manager Whitney Millspaugh.

This year’s chosen ornament artisan, Tiffany Andrews, created the “W” ornament using polymer clay.

Ninth in a series, each ‘W’ ornament has been “intricately assembled” in Wabash.

Andrews had to first manipulate the polymer clay by using a kneading technique to make it soft enough to work with. The clay was then rolled out, and each “W” was cut using a stencil. Each tiny piece of colored clay within the “W” was placed by hand. Wooden beads are incorporated into the top of the design to create an aesthetic piece for your tree.

“I am very excited to feature Tiffany Andrews as the ninth ornament artisan,” said tourism manager Jennifer Long-Dillon, creator of the ornament program. “I first fell in love with her polymer clay earrings she creates and sells through her business, Blackcurrant Design. Her earring designs are so intricate and unique, I knew I had to approach her to create this year’s ornament. I am so glad she agreed to create 100 of these beautiful handmade ornaments and am absolutely thrilled with how they turned out.” Andrews creates one-of-a-kind, clay accessories that empower women to embrace their unique purpose. She has been influenced by different cultures and life experiences. She was born in Houston, Texas and lived in Venezuela, South America as a child, and studied design in South Carolina and Florence, Italy. Before residing in Wabash, she and her family lived in Chicago, where Blackcurrant was born. Her work reflects those adventures.

“What a tremendous honor it is to be the selected artist for the Visit Wabash County Ornament,” said Andrews. “I wanted to pay tribute to the community that has welcomed our family with open arms while also creating a piece that is true to Blackcurrant Design. I’m excited for this ornament to become a family heirloom on your tree. The memories that will inevitably be tied to it overwhelms my maker’s heart.”

Millspaugh said although traveling and living in many places around the world, Wabash has captured Andrews’ heart.

“Blackcurrant Design would not be the success it is today without the support the Wabash community has provided to her,” said Millspaugh.

A limited quantity of 100 ornaments are available for purchase for $30 each and will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Ornaments may be purchased online by visiting VisitWabashCounty.com and picked up at the Welcome Center, 221 S. Miami St.

Ornaments may be picked up at the time of purchase and payment is due upon receipt.

Anita Rae (Landis) Davidson

Jan. 4, 1955 – Nov. 13, 2021

Anita Rae (Landis) Davidson, 67, most recently of Ankeny, Iowa, went to be with her Lord on Nov. 13, 2021, after an extended battle with Ovarian cancer.

Funeral services will be held at Memorial Services of Iowa, 10:00am, Wednesday Nov. 17, 2021, with burial immediately following at the Brethren cemetery in Elkhart. Visitation will precede the service beginning at 9 am.

The service will be livestreamed at <https://vimeo.com/646112779>

Anita was born on Jan. 4, 1955, in Wabash, Indiana to Donald and Marguerite (Dorsey) Smith and graduated from Southwood High School in 1973. She raised three children in LaFontaine, Indiana, then married her current husband, Thomas Davidson, in 2000 and moved to Ankeny.

A lifelong Christian, she was a member of Ankeny Church of the Brethren where she frequently played the piano and led worship. She worked as an administrative assistant in the library at the Des Moines Area Community College for many years. She was an avid seamstress, gardener, family woman, prayer warrior, and an amazing cook. Anita’s positivity in the face of illness and struggle was an inspiration for those who knew her and her giving spirit will be missed by many.

She is survived by her husband, Thomas; children, Angela Brown, Christopher (Leticia) Landis, Ronda (Jeremy) Bernath, Mike (Megan) Davidson, Jennifer (Jason) Cooper, Kevin (Amy) Davidson, and Rebecca (Nick) Gorell; ten grandchildren, with one on the way, and two great-grandchildren; two sisters, Linda (Jim) Domine and Sharon (Roger) Channell; and two brothers, Paul (Janet) Smith and Mark (Debbie) Smith.

Anita was preceded in death by her father, mother and brother, Wendell Smith.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Anita’s memory to the Ovarian Cancer Research Alliance (https://give.ocra.hope.org/give/186942/#!/donation/checkout?c_src=OCRAweb&c_src2=header) or the Multiple Sclerosis Foundation (<https://msfocus.org/Donate.aspx>).

The menu will include pancakes, biscuits, gravy and a drink for a free-will donation.

Former Wabash resident up for a Hollywood Music in Media Award

Abbie Thomas’ music video, ‘FireFlies,’ nominated in Independent Music Video category

STAFF REPORT

Abbie Thomas is a full-time singer-songwriter from Goshen, but she used to call Wabash home. She attended Northfield High School. She also performed at the Founders’ Day Festival in September and has also been seen at The Green Hat Lounge at Charley Creek Inn.

Thomas recently had a music video, “FireFlies,” nominated for a Hollywood Music in Media Award (HMMA) in the category of Independent Music Video, according to a press release.

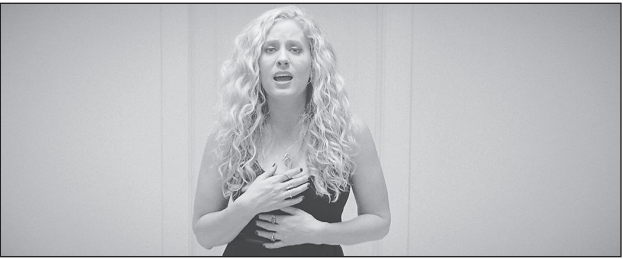

The event takes place at 5:30 p.m. PST/8:30 p.m. EST Wednesday, Nov. 17.

Thomas was released from her full-time employment in the spring of 2020 due to COVID-19 shutdowns, while she was seven months pregnant with her and her husbands’ first child.

At that time, she had been playing her original music at northern Indiana and south Michigan wineries and breweries part-time.

Because of the timing, she and her husband decided to sell her home, and use the funds to take maternity leave, and then record her debut album, “Who I Am.” Three music videos were also budgeted for to set her up for a run at a full-time music career.

“I partnered with some of Goshen’s finest and kindest to create the music videos. Elijah Durnell was one of two producers on the album; he knew my story and my aesthetic, and he agreed to jump on board as creative director for the music videos. He also plays our ‘boyfriend’ in the ‘Fireflies’ music video. David Perkins, currently a cinematographer for VALA Marketing in Elkhart, agreed to film and on-set direct all three music videos,” said Thomas.

“Fireflies” is a one-continuous shot music video filmed in downtown Goshen. This song also landed Thomas an Acorn Singer-Songwriter Finalist position in June 2019 in Three Oaks, Michigan.

“This song is so personal to me, as is the whole album, but the video is something I’ll be proud of for the rest of my life. The cast and crew worked themselves to exhaustion to pull this together. We had a very tight budget and a tinner timeline, but once I told everyone on set some of the back story of the song. They absolutely nailed the emotions of the music,” said Thomas.

Elizabeth Swihart, an actress from South Bend, plays the role of the lead female.

“While filming, I would have 10 seconds here and there to watch what Elizabeth was doing, and she had me crying in the middle of a take. She made me want to do better, and I think it was a trickle effect through the entire cast,” said Thomas.

The HMMAs honor composers, songwriters, and music supervisors for their work in music for film, television, and video games.

The Hollywood Music in Media Awards™ (HMMA) is the first awards organization to honor original music (Song and Score) in all visual media from around the globe. The HMMA nominations have historically been representative of the nominees and winners of the Golden Globes, Oscars and Emmys that occur months later. The Hollywood Music in Media Awards Media eligibility release period is Jan. 1 to Dec. 31 of the current year.

“We felt that to maintain our November date, while highlighting wonderful performances with talent participating from around the world, we needed to have a virtual, pre-recorded show. With this date, the HMMA holds its position as the first awards event of the year that recognizes music in film, and other visual media, prior to Grammys and Oscars,” said executive producer Brent Harvey.

To view the nominated music video for “FireFlies” visit <https://youtu.be/AH5efvneOUw>.

Northfield looks to find recipe for success

By CLAY MAXFIELD

Wabash Plain Dealer
Freelance Reporter

Northfield's varsity boys basketball team will have new leadership at the helm this 2021-2022 season as Rex Reimer takes over the Norse in pursuit of a year that will improve on the team's previous 7-16 record.

With a new offense and defense, Reimer is confident in the team that is preparing to take the floor on Tuesday, Nov. 23 in their first game of the season against Eastern at home.

"We have two seniors in Jake Halderman and Kaleb Krom and I've kind of pointed them out in practice to the rest of the team and really looking for some leadership from those two guys," Reimer said. "Along with the strong junior class that we have, those guys coming back, I look forward to having two years with those juniors."

"From the start of September until now, we've made huge strides."

A backcourt comprised of Eli Kroh, Dillon Tomlinson, Jaxton Peas, CJ Long and Kody Stambaugh, the Norsemen will be ripe with the talent to take over duties in guard-operated roles. Tomlinson and Kroh will split reps between Northfield's point guard play.

Tomlinson averaged nearly 10 points a game last season in 21 minutes per game. Paul Treska and Kaleb Krom will anchor the paint and serve as Northfield's focal point in terms of frontcourt play. Treska and Krom combine for over 10 points of scoring from last season along with 11 rebounds per game.

Offensively, Northfield wants to find a healthy balance of pace and play while being able to slow the game down and utilize their post presence.

"The offense is really going to be working around those guys in the post as the season goes. Hopefully, we'll get a lot of in-out looks and hopefully, those big guys can become big passers as well," Reimer said.

"We're not necessarily going to play slow by any means but with having some post players with that size, that is going to be our main focus of trying to get teams in foul trouble. ... With the offense that I've put in, we could have a shot off the first pass. I'm not going to be that coach that harps on moving the ball around until we get an absolutely clean look," Reimer said.

While this is Reimer's first year as the varsity head coach, Reimer served as the JV head coach for the previous three seasons.

Reimer's familiarity with the program and the community has led to his focus on being able to build Northfield's basketball program from the ground up, noting that this upcoming season will see over 100 players from third grade to their senior class suiting up for the Norse.

"I want to change the culture at Northfield," Reimer said. "That's what I told the guys right up front when we had one of our first meetings together. The culture here at Northfield has to change and we have to make it known within the county and conference that Northfield is not going to be that game on each team's schedule that they can chalk up as an easy win."

"It's going to start with this year's team to set that precedence."

The Bronze Ball comes home after Spartans' 3-0 win

By DILLON BENDER

The Manchester University Spartans won back the coveted Bronze Ball Trophy after shutting out rival Anderson University 3-0 at Spartan Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

A lone field goal by senior kicker Andrew Kibler, from Cape Coral, Florida, and Mariner High School, was all the difference in Saturday's score. Kibler connected on a 39-yard try early in the fourth quarter.

The Black and Gold defense stood tall when it mattered most in Saturday's heated rivalry game as Spartans came away with five takeaways. Manchester intercepted Anderson quarterback Tyson Harley four times, while also forcing a key fumble.

Playing in his final collegiate game, senior defensive back Michael Cross, from Arcadia and Hamilton Heights High School, provided two of Manchester's four interceptions on the day. Cross finished with six tackles, recovered a fumble and also broke up a pass. Senior defensive end Jabari Webb, Manchester won back the coveted Bronze Ball Trophy and has won 10 of the last 11 match-ups in the series.

from Villa Rica, Georgia, had an interception in Saturday's game while also providing seven total tackles and one and a half tackles for loss. Senior linebacker Jalen Masden, from Evansville and Harrison High School, led the Black and Gold with 11 total tackles.

The Spartans were able to seal the

For the game, the Manchester defense racked up eight tackles for loss for 28 yards. MU also had four sacks.

The Spartans ended the 2021 season with a record of 3-7, 3-4 HCAC. Manchester won back the coveted Bronze Ball Trophy and has won 10 of the last 11 match-ups in the series.

Anderson ended its season 1-9, 1-6 HCAC.

Late rally by MU men's hoops falls just short at Kalamazoo

By DILLON BENDER

Visiting Manchester University's rally fell just short at Kalamazoo as the host Hornets were able to outlast the Spartans 71-64 in men's basketball action on Friday, Nov. 12.

Trailing by as much as 16 points midway through the second half, the Spartans went on a 17-2 run that chewed up more than six minutes of game clock to draw to within a basket at 65-63.

Kalamazoo was able to withstand the lengthy push by the Spartans as the Hornets managed to outscore the Spartans 6-1 over the final two minutes of the game. A key jump shot by Kalamazoo's Ty Horky and a pair of free throws by Bobby Samples sealed the win for the Hornets.

For the contest, Kalamazoo finished 26-55 (47.3 percent) from the field. Manchester was limited to just 23-65 shooting (35.4 percent). The Spartans also struggled from three-point territory, shooting just 9-35 (25.7 percent). The Hornets held a 42-34 advantage on the glass and pressured a young Spartan squad into committing 21 turnovers.

First-year guard Bryant Smith, from West Lafayette and Harrison High School, led Manchester with 17 points. Smith finished 5-10 from beyond the three-point arc. First-year point guard Quentez Columbus, from South Bend and Adams High School, finished with 13 points, five assists and three rebounds. First-year guard Ty Lynas, from Crawfordsville, chipped in eight points and six boards off the bench.

Kalamazoo was led by Dj Courtney's 25 points and nine rebounds. Lukas Broadsword added a double-double with 12 points and 10 rebounds.

The Spartans (0-2) were back in action Saturday, Nov. 13, with another road contest in Michigan at Adrian College.

Kalamazoo (1-1) hosted Anderson University Saturday, Nov. 13 in the Anderson Athletic Center.

Manchester's Michael Cross named HCAC Defensive Player of the Week

By DILLON BENDER

The Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference (HCAC) has named Manchester University senior defensive back Michael Cross its conference defensive player of the week, the league announced on Monday, Nov. 15.

Cross, from Arcadia and Hamilton Heights High School, led the Manchester defense to its second shutout of the season on Saturday afternoon.

Cross was outstanding, providing two of Manchester's four interceptions on the day. Cross had interception returns of 24 and 10-yards. In addition to his two picks, Michael finished with six tackles, recovered a fumble and also broke up a pass.

The Spartans kept Anderson off the scoreboard in a 3-0 Bronze Ball victory.

Adrian sinks Spartans in men's basketball

By DILLON BENDER

Adrian College used a strong second half to rally past visiting Manchester University in men's basketball action on Saturday, Nov. 13.

The Spartans built a 38-34 lead at the intermission; however, the Bulldogs were able to outscore the Black and Gold 58-42 in the 2nd half to secure a 92-80 victory.

Host Adrian shot a blistering 64.5 percent (20-31) in the second half. The Bulldogs finished Saturday's game with 54 points in the paint, 34 bench points and 26 points in transition.

Manchester was able to score 42 of its points in the paint on Saturday.

First-year point guard Quentez Columbus, from South Bend and Adams High School, led Manchester with 18 points. Columbus finished 7-10 shooting for the game. First-year guard Ian Snelling, from Erlanger, Kentucky, and Dixie Heights High School, added 16 points and seven rebounds. Snelling shot 7-9 from the floor and went 2-2 from three-point territory. Sophomore forward ward Mitch Mendenhall, from New Haven and Woodlan High School, chipped in 16 points and five boards.

Five Bulldogs scored in double figures on Saturday and were led by Connor Pelham's double-double of 20 points and 14 rebounds.

The Spartans (0-3) looked to get their first win on the evening of Tuesday, Nov. 16 when Ohio Northern paid a visit to Stauffer-Wolfe Arena.

Adrian (1-1) will travel to Earlham College on Wednesday, Nov. 17 for a 7:30 p.m. showdown with the Quakers.

MU wins women's basketball home opener

By DILLON BENDER

The Manchester University women's basketball team knocked off visiting Kalamazoo College by a final score of 60-43 in the team's home opener on Friday, Nov. 12.

The Black and Gold led from start to finish and built as large as a 27-point lead in the contest. The biggest stat from Friday's home opener was that the Spartans pressured Kalamazoo into committing 35 turnovers. Manchester converted those 35 turnovers into 32 points.

Senior guard Miranda Bieghler, from Plainfield and South Putnam High School, led a balanced Manchester scoring attack with 12 points. She added a career-high six steals in the win.

First-year guard Eva Bazzoni, from Wabash and Manchester High School, added 10 points and four steals. Sophomore forward Alyssa Pfeil, from Goshen and Concord Community High School, posted career-highs of nine points and seven boards. Nine different Spartans scored in Friday's win.

The Spartans shot 22-63 (34.9 percent) in the home opener. 34 of Manchester's 60 points came in the paint.

The Spartans (1-1) will have a week off before their next contest. Manchester will host Adrian College at home in Stauffer-Wolfe Arena on Saturday, Nov. 20. Game time is scheduled for 1 p.m.

DAILY SCRIPTURE

But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. For if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who looks intently at his natural face in a mirror.

James 1:22-23

Threats against election workers and other public officials threaten our democracy

Bizarre threats toward public officials, and even violent acts, have been part of the news for many years. Typically they're shrugged off as aberrations.

That blasé approach is increasingly out of touch with the frequency of today's frightening threats.

Even before the 2020 election season and its seemingly perpetual aftermath, public officials endured heightened risks of threats of violence and actual violence. It was easy to make this seem OK by attributing the occurrences to people with acute need for mental health treatment. After all, there's nothing at all proportionate about hurting someone because of a traffic ticket or a tax increase, whether or not the imposition is just. This thinking downplays real problems – mental health care is inadequate; public employees don't deserve to fear for their lives just for doing their jobs – but we mostly just shrugged. Even when the worst happens – an Iowa mayor is murdered, a congresswoman is shot, a federal judge's son is killed – everybody else just moves on.

The landscape has changed. Reuters in a series of stories has identified dozens of phone and digital messages to American election workers that law experts said could be considered criminal. Yet in many cases, there was little evidence that law enforcement had pursued the matters with any vigor, with some spokespersons pointing to the breadth of the First Amendment's protections for political speech. In one instance, Reuters reporters said they quickly located a caller whom officers in Vermont had called "essentially untraceable."

John Keller, a senior Department of Justice attorney leading a federal task force created over the summer, addressed those issues in a speech to secretaries of state who gathered in Des Moines for a conference in August.

Constant threats toward public employees are themselves a threat to democracy.

He called the government's reactions inadequate and said that "there have been plenty of incidents where there is no political sheen that's been added, threats that are very explicit in nature targeting people like yourselves and your family members."

Here in Iowa, after state Rep. Ross Wilburn criticized President Donald Trump and his supporters in these pages last month, he quickly received numerous threats, one saying he should be lynched. Police continue to investigate.

Although it's dangerous to extrapolate from anecdotes, a question at a Turning Point USA rally in Idaho on Oct. 25 is frighteningly difficult to ignore: "When do we get to use the guns? ... I mean, literally, where's the line?"

How many elections are they going to steal before we kill these people?" The presenter, Charlie Kirk, tepidly rebuked the questioner on the grounds that saying such things publicly could help liberals justify intrusions on freedom.

It bears mentioning – in anticipation of indignant replies of "Well, what about Black Lives Matter riots?" – that:

Only one group of political activists has invaded the seat of American government recently.

"Riots" is a wholly incorrect description of the vast majority of social justice protests.

It's easy to distinguish between petitioning the government and threatening the physical safety of your political opponents – hysterical overreactions of some Iowa Republicans to summer 2020 protests in Des Moines notwithstanding.

At least three things are needed in response to all this.

1. Call out the lies
One is for people with an audience, such as Kirk, or Gov. Kim Reynolds, or Sen. Chuck Grassley or Sen. Joni Ernst, to sharply reject the animating premise in so many of these incidents: the idea that Democrats have stolen and will steal election victories from Republicans. It is inarguably divorced from reason. No credible arbiter has found any credence to 2020 conspiracy theories about the outcome of the presidential election. To their discredit, many Republicans have indicated no appetite for unequivocal rebukes, preferring instead cynical indulgence, delivered with generalities about making sure that people have faith in elections.

2. Investigate the threats
More promising is for prosecutors and law enforcement, from the FBI and attorney general down to local jurisdictions, to commit to investigate reports of threats promptly and thoroughly. Although it's more than fair to question whether aggressive investigation and prosecution would run counter to the spirit of the First Amendment and chill vital political speech, few of the vicious threats public workers have endured on their own over the past year seem like close calls.

3. Look in the mirror
Finally, all of us could take a little more responsibility for conducting ourselves civilly, and for calmly resisting outrageous conduct when we see it. Maybe you would never leave a vulgar phone message for an election worker or tell a lawmaker that you have firearms and his address. But would you blithely label a politician's action "treasonous" in a Facebook comment and wonder about executing her? No? Would you click "like" on a meme suggesting the same thing? Or ignore it and hope somebody else calls out the misinformation and authoritarianism?

A large part of the blame for these circumstances belongs to Trump and his "stolen election" lies and to Republican leaders too cowardly to stand up to him. But we all can insist law enforcement investigate genuine threats and individually do our part to rein in the incivility that infects our political interactions. When dehumanizing barking becomes normal, the road to potential violence gets that much shorter.

This editorial was first published in the Des Moines Register.

It is time to be honest about debt, spending and taxation

The U.S. Congress is turning its attention to something called the Build it Back Better (BBB) bill. This is a good time to think critically about the political economy of our national debt. It is good to start with some facts and acknowledge what we do and do not know about the economic consequences of a large public debt. A big part of this is discussion must be the question of how we tax ourselves to pay for this debt.

Public debts aren't new, and the U.S. government has spent more than it has received in taxes for almost all of the past half century. Despite our economic cycles, we remain the largest rich economy, with reasonable long-term growth and currency that is the most dominant in world history. Clearly, a rich nation can run a debt for a long time without meaningful consequences.

A nation like ours can also finance big negative shocks, like a world war or global pandemic. We have been successful in paying these back over long periods, financed by sufficient economic growth that our tax revenues exceed spending. However, we can also hold debt for decades, if what we buy is a boost to long-term economic growth.

The composition of debt matters deeply. Spending that makes us more productive because of better public capital or a more educated workforce often pays for itself through increased GDP that is then taxed. Still, a great deal of government spending doesn't boost the economy and isn't designed to do so. Social Security, military pensions and much of direct income support for poor people are programs that don't pay for themselves in new tax revenue or savings elsewhere.

I honestly think there is little disagreement among Americans about these types of programs, or at least the spending portion. Although we may disagree in the details for how these programs are administered and who gets payments, where we disagree the most is how to pay for them.

A small minority in Congress believe this is a moot point because they cling on to something called Modern Monetary Theory (MMT). The basic idea behind MMT is that deficits don't really matter until they become inflationary. The role of taxes is solely to keep inflation in check. To most people this seems implausible, as it does to the vast majority of economists.

Today's economic conditions provide a good thought experiment on the reasonableness of MMT. We are in a period of higher prices for everything from food and gasoline to used cars. Suppose the price increases we see from supply chain disruptions turn into full-fledged inflation early next year. Imagine consumer prices rising by 4 percent or 6 percent by early summer. To MMT proponents, the way to remedy this is through higher taxes on consumers. And here's where the thought experiment gets interesting – imagine the current Congress voting to raise taxes if gas is $4.50 a gallon.

You may pause reading long enough to stop laughing. It must be said that Modern Monetary Theory is a "Hee Haw" skit masquerading as sensible economic policy, and therein lies our problem with talking about deficits. The Build it Back Better (BBB) bill has a lot of parts, some of which will appeal to many Americans. However, the tax increases that accompany it won't come close to paying for it. If it did, then the Congressional Budget Office would've been asked to do a full analysis months ago.

The difficult fact is that we cannot tax billionaires or millionaires enough to pay for this bill. To pay for the BBB, we will need a wholesale reworking of taxes. The BBB edges the United States much closer to Scandinavian nations in terms of social spending. To be clear, this is not socialism; Finland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark are not socialist nations. Still, I think few Americans want that type of government. I am old fashioned, and think the best way to prevent something that is unpopular is simply to tell the truth about it.

In order to pay for the large social spending of the BBB, the U.S. will need much heavier, Scandinavian-style taxes. These cannot be levied solely on the very rich, in either income or wealth taxes. We could tax all the billionaires 100 percent and not pay for year one of the BBB. In fact, the big difference between U.S. and nations such as Sweden and Norway is not how we tax the rich, but how we tax the middle class and the poor.

Right now, the U.S. has a very progressive federal tax. About half of families pay no income taxes. They do pay payroll taxes for Social Security and Medicare, along with state and local taxes, but that raises far too little revenue to pay for the large social programs in the BBB. And, because people can choose not to work or lobby for a myriad of loopholes, we are close to the maximum share of revenue we can raise through income taxes.

In order to pay for the BBB, the U.S. will have to institute broad Value Added Taxes, or VAT. These are essentially a national sales tax that is levied on every exchange, including business-to-business sales. Readers who support the BBB, you should know that the Value Added Tax Rate in these four Scandinavian counties is currently 24 percent or 25 percent. To catch up with the Scandinavian countries, the average tax rate on the middle class U.S. family will have to rise by one-third or more. That truth should help frame any future discussion on federal spending.

Remembering veterans

On this Veterans Day, we extended our appreciation and thoughts to our active-duty military personnel, and we paid tribute to the many millions of veterans who have served our country over the past 246 years. We also wished to memorialize the passing this year of our brother-in-law, Commander Barry Rowe; and acknowledge the other veterans of the Jones and Moskowitz families who served during major wars from the Civil War to the War On Terror.

During the Civil War, 1st Sargent John B. Jones (Elizabeth's grandfather) and Corporal William E. Jones (Elizabeth's great uncle) were in the 5th New York Cavalry Regiment from upstate New York within the period 1861 to 1865. They fought in many battles, including the Orange Court House, Brandy Station, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania Court House, Cold Harbor and Gettysburg.

Donald's grandfather, Pvt. Max Moskowitz, served in the U.S. Cavalry (Roughriders) in 1898 during the Spanish American War.

During World War I, Alton Christmas Jones (Elizabeth's father) and William Howard Jones (uncle) served in the USMC and saw action at Belleau Wood, Chateau-Thierry, Aisne-Marne and Meuse-Argonne. William Howard received the U.S. Silver Star and the French Croix De Guerre medals for his "action at Blanc Mont Ridge on Oct. 3, 1918, where he held off a German attack using a machine pistol."

Donald's father, Sidney Moskowitz, was a machinist who repaired ships at the Charlestown, MA Naval Shipyard during World War II. Elizabeth's cousin, Barney O'Neil, was a U.S. Army infantryman who landed in Normandy in June 1944. Bob Rosenblatt (Donald's relative) served in the Army at the end of World War II.

Barry Rowe (Donald's brother-in-law) was a Commander in the U.S. Navy who served during the Korean War and the Vietnam War.

John Jones and Edward Jones (Elizabeth's brothers) served in the late '50s and early to mid-'60s. John U.S. Army and Edward, USMC. Donald Moskowitz was an E5 in the Navy in the 50s and then was a Vietnam-era veteran in the 60s serving as a Navy officer on 13 ships. Robert Nichol (Elizabeth's cousin) was a platoon leader in Vietnam from 1969 to 1970. He was in the 1st Infantry Division and the 101st Infantry Division. During his Vietnam service, he was awarded the Silver Star, two Bronze Stars and two Purple Hearts.

Michael Gerard (Donald's and Elizabeth's son-in-law) was an Airman First Class, USAF in the early 80s. Jeffrey Ammons (Donald's nephew) served as an Army officer during the War On Terror.

We must continue to remember all of our veterans who have served our country in times of peace and war.

b. Bid Document 003000 – Stipulated Bid Form – Base Bid.
c. Bid Security (see below)

7. Each envelope that bids are included in is required to have a label on the outside indicating project name as well as the contractor's name and address.

F. Miscellaneous Provisions

1. Each proposal shall be accompanied by a certified check or acceptable bidder's bond made payable to the Owner, in a sum of not less than five percent (5%) of the total amount of the highest aggregate proposal, which check or bond will be held by the Owner as evidence that the bidder will, if awarded the contract, enter into the same with the Owner upon notification from him to do so within ten (10) days of said notification. Should a successful bidder withdraw his bid, or fail to execute a satisfactory Contract, the Owner may then declare the bid deposit of bond or check forfeited as liquidated damages but not as a penalty.

2. For contracts over $200,000, approved performance and payment bonds guaranteeing faithful and proper performance of the work and materials, to be executed by an acceptable surety company, will be required of the Contractor at the time he executes his contract. The bond will be in the amount of 100% of the Contract Price and must be in full force and effect throughout the term of the Construction Contract plus a period of twelve (12) months from the date of substantial completion.

3. The Owner reserves the right to reject any proposal, or all proposals, or to accept any proposal or proposals, or to make such combination of proposals as may seem desirable, and to waive any and all informalities in bidding. Any proposal may be withdrawn prior to the above scheduled time for the opening of proposals or authorized postponement thereof. Any proposal received after the time and date specified shall not be considered. The Owner reserves the right to accept or reject any bid or waive any informality or errors in bidding for a period of 90 days after bid date.

4. A conditional or qualified Bid will not be accepted. Award will be made to the low, responsive, responsible bidder.

5. All applicable laws, ordinances, and the rules and regulations of all authorities having jurisdiction over construction of the project shall apply to the project throughout.

6. Proposals shall be properly and completely executed on proposal forms included in the Project Manual. Proposals shall include all information requested by State Board of Accounts Form 96 (Revised 2013) included within the Project Manual. Under Section III of Form 96, the Bidder shall submit a financial statement. The Owner may make such investigations as deemed necessary to determine the ability of the Bidder to perform the work and the Bidder shall furnish to the Owner all such information and data for this purpose as the Owner may request. The Owner reserves the right to reject any bid if the evidence submitted by, or investigation of, such Bidder fails to satisfy the Owner that such Bidder is properly qualified to carry out the obligations of the Agreement and to complete the work contemplated therein.

7. Each Bidder is responsible for inspecting the Project site(s) and for reading and being thoroughly familiar with the Contract Documents and Specifications. The failure or omission of any Bidder to do any of the foregoing shall in no way relieve any Bidder from any obligation with respect to its Bid.

Tate is currently on a nationwide tour in celebration of the 30th anniversary of Queensrÿche’s albums “Empire” and “Rage for Order.” The former lead singer of the legendary group will perform both albums in their entirety. Welcomed by 101.9 Rocks, most seats are $25, $39 or $69, with limited premium seating for $99. Tickets are on sale now by calling 260-563-1102 or on-line by visiting www.honeywellarts.org.

Deimer, a Cincinnati native, is not only a musician but is also an entrepreneur owning several companies including PennStar, Coolants Plus and Starfire, which is a sponsor for the Cincinnati Reds, among others.

“I’ve always wanted to get back into the music business,” said Deimer, during a phone interview on Monday. “I left it when I was about 20. I got my act together, finished college and ended up starting some other companies and said if I could ever un-tap my creative side and do it at the right time and in the right place to withstand the beat down you go through to get to where you want to be, then I’ll do it.”

Deimer said the road back to unleashing that creative side began back in 2017 when he had scheduled a cameo for Starfire, which had product placement in a John Travolta movie, “Trading Paint,” which was later released in 2019.

“All of a sudden I’m getting offered a speaking role for the end of the movie,” said Deimer.

Deimer said before he knew it, he was in a scene with Travolta, Shania Twain and Toby Sebastian.

“It was just very surreal and it was like, ‘Well, this must be a sign that it’s time to get back into this acting and singing thing,” said Deimer.

Deimer said after that, he also appeared in “Halloween,” which was released in

Deimer said around that same time, he started recording music again in December 2018 and put together a demo of songs he wrote with Ben Trexel in Alabama.

Deimer said after it was mixed, the next stop was Los Angeles where Chris Lord-Alge remixed the songs.

“He believes in what I brought out there and becomes my producer and brings me together with Phil X and here we are,” said Deimer.

Deimer said while all this was happening creatively, his business career was already well-established.

“I started my other companies starting back in 1999,” said Deimer. “I started in above my garage with a phone and dry-erase board and a computer and started keeping track of my profit. And I built these companies.”

Deimer said he’s backed away from his companies so he could focus on his creative career.

“We’re doing great. The companies are worth more now that they’re not attached to me. So, I can simply focus on my music and acting now,” said Deimer.

Deimer said his practical entrepreneurial experience has served him well in his musical career.

“People know I’m a businessman and it’s kind of hard to pull the wool over my eyes even though some have tried,” said Deimer. “I know how to pivot and how to make things successful. And if I just stay true to who I am. I’m a good dude. I’ve got a unique voice. You want to join us for the ride? Because we’re going to go all the way. Get on board. If you don’t. It’s cool, too. I get it. We’ll regroup and keep moving. It’s helped me immensely.”

Deimer recently released his music video “Burn Together” which features Tate on vocals and was directed by Scottish filmmaker Paul Boyd, and it debuted as no. 3 most added on the Billboard Mainstream Rock Indicator chart. Deimer’s debut EP is set for release later this year.

Deimer said Phil X and he have been “writing like crazy.”

“We’ve got like 30 songs teed up and only six coming out on the first album,” said Deimer.

In addition, Deimer said recording and touring with Tate has been “very surreal.”

“We decided to have him sing on ‘Burn Together.’ I picked the song and he came in and killed it, man. And to have the guy that I saw on MTV singing with an orchestra ‘Silent Lucidity’ and idolizing him when I was young watching shows and everything,” said Deimer. “It’s very weird, dude. I pinch myself and I know I’m blessed and I’ll just keep working hard. And who knows where it’ll end up? But hopefully all over the world and an arena near you.”

Deimer said his advice to younger musicians was to be well-rounded in all areas of the business.

“Hone your craft, obviously. Keep practicing what you’re really good at. Whether it’s singing or guitar or keyboards. I can play a little bit of everything. I know my forte is writing lyrics and presenting them in a unique way with my deeper voice. So I stick to that,” said Deimer. “But also balance that out with the expectation that this is not easy to do. Very few people make it. If you want to play in a local band, more power to you. But always have a work ethic. Have something you can fall back on. And I even tell a lot of young musicians now, ‘Go to school and learn the sound engineering side of the business. Learn the business side that all the folks that support the musician. ... Just know talent is nothing without hard work.’”

Notre Dame receives $50M gift toward undergrad aid

SOUTH BEND (AP) — A $50 million gift to the University of Notre Dame to support undergraduate financial aid is the largest of its kind in the school’s history, officials said Tuesday.

Alumnus Harry Fath and his wife, Linda, of Cincinnati, Ohio, pledged the money exclusively toward aid for undergraduates, Notre Dame officials said.

“This extraordinarily generous gift will provide much-needed flexibility in offering financial aid packages tailored to the needs of our students and their families,” Notre Dame President Rev. John Jenkins said.

Harry Fath, a 1963 Notre Dame graduate, has served on its Law School Advisory Council since 2000. He served in the U.S. Army after graduating, attended law school at the University of Cincinnati and founded a real estate management company after several years practicing law.

Notre Dame has planned to distribute more than $180 million this academic year in need-based scholarships funded through the university’s endowment, the release said.

Nearly 70 percent of Notre Dame students currently receive financial aid with average scholarships totaling more than $50,000, the university said.

“It is our hope that this gift will change thousands of lives for the better,” Harry Fath said.
